

Biography

Dr. Firuza Parikh
Director,
Department of Assisted Reproduction,
Jaslok Hospital and Research Center,
Maharashtra.

Dr. Firuza Parikh completed her undergraduate as well as postgraduate medical education at the KEM Hospital and the Seth G. S. Medical College, Mumbai. Had a distinguished career with several gold medals and first ranks. After MD and Diplomate of the National Board, trained at Yale University School of Medicine as a postdoctoral researcher in Reproductive Medicine for 4 years.

Dr. Firuza Parikh set up and head the first IVF centre

In India to set up and head the first IVF centre in a private hospital at the Jaslok Hospital in 1989. Within a year of its inception the Jaslok centre was being hailed as an outstanding international centre and began receiving patients from 35 different countries as well as from every state of India. Director, Dept. of Assisted Reproduction and Genetics, Jaslok Hospital and Research Centre. Visiting Professor in Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Yale University School of Medicine, New Haven, USA 1992-2005.