“For Improper Objects”: Reflections on the Past, Present, and Future of Women’s Studies

Women across the world are raising their voices and taking action in unprecedented numbers, challenging the injustices they face daily. These movements are transforming conversations, cultures, and laws, driving meaningful change. However, it is essential to ensure that the girls and women most affected by gender inequality—especially those living in extreme poverty—are not left behind. A truly inclusive and global feminism, one that transcends national, cultural, religious, and social boundaries, is vital for achieving lasting equality and empowerment for all.

The conference seeks to provide a global perspective, focusing on the economic, social, and psychological dimensions of empowerment and leadership, while also addressing critical issues such as victimization, exclusion, and social challenges.

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

Gender Equality & Women's Empowerment

"Gender equality is not only a fundamental human right, but a necessary foundation for a peaceful, prosperous and sustainable world. There has been progress over the last decades, but the world is not on track to achieve gender equality by 2030."

The overall orientation of UN-Women is to achieve the elimination of discrimination against women and girls, the empowerment of women and the realization of equality between women and men as partners in and beneficiaries of development, human rights, humanitarian action and peace and security. As regards the 2030 Agenda, UN-Women supports in particular the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 5, on achieving gender equality and empowering all women and girls, as well as of the gender dimensions of all the other Goals, through gender mainstreaming, recognizing that gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls are essential to the achievement of sustainable development in all its dimensions.

Violence against Women & Girls

"The United Nations defines violence against women as "any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual, or mental harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life"

The successful interventions are those that prioritize safety of women; whose core elements involve challenging unequal gender power relationships; that are participatory; address multiple risk factors through combined programming and that start early in the life course.

To achieve lasting change, it is important to enact and enforce legislation and develop and implement policies that promote gender equality; allocate resources to prevention and response; and invest in women's rights organizations

Women Rights

"Women's rights are the fundamental human rights that were enshrined by the United Nations for every human being on the planet nearly 70 years ago. These rights include the right to live free from violence, slavery, and discrimination; to be educated; to own property; to vote; and to earn a fair and equal wage."

As the now-famous saying goes, "women's rights are human rights." That is to say, women are entitled to all of these rights. Yet almost everywhere around the world, women and girls are still denied them, often simply because of their gender.

Breast Cancer

"Breast cancer does not strike an individual alone but the whole family unit. Despite considerable social changes, women continue to be the focus of family life. The impact of breast cancer is therefore profound on both the woman diagnosed with the disease and her family. Their fear and anxiety over the eventual outcome of the illness may manifest itself through behavioural changes."

Breast cancer is a heterogeneous disease in both its biology and clinical manifestations. Advances in knowledge and progress in the therapy of breast cancer have been based upon a multidisciplinary approach, which is required for the development of early detection and screening guidelines as well as the proper treatment and follow-up of patients. A standardized protocol requires a systematic review of the literature to address the core questions of who is to benefit from the health intervention, i.e. those at high risk of early morbidity and mortality, and what health intervention is most appropriate in terms of efficacy and has been proven to be cost-effective in reducing morbidity and mortality.

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

Women Leadership & Political Participation

"Persistent barriers to women's equal and effective participation in decision-making arise from deeply rooted and unequal power relations. These underpin discriminatory laws, policies and institutions, and feed widespread violence against women in politics."

Women's Leadership will prioritize changing social norms and shifting cultural attitudes that portray women's roles in communities and society as incompatible with political power; and put a specific focus on building critical skills of young women and engage men and boys, office holders and the media as allies for gender equality and women's empowerment.

Women Entrepreneurs

"The woman who follows the crowd will usually go no further than the crowd. The woman who walks alone is likely to find herself in places no one has been ever before"

- Albert Einstein

Women entrepreneurs have become an integral part of today's corporate world. Not only are they able to equalize their duties of both motherhood and entrepreneurship but also, they comprise of almost half of all businesses owned. Today, more women are breaking free from the traditional, gender-specific roles and venturing into the business world.

In recent years, India has witnessed a rise in the number of successful women entrepreneurs. These inspiring businesswomen in India have not only broken the glass ceiling but also contributed immensely to the country's economic growth.

Motherhood Initiative for Research & Community Involvement

"A forum for the discussion and dissemination of research on motherhood, and to establish a community of individuals and institutions working and researching in the area of mothering and motherhood"

The Motherhood Initiative for Research and Community Involvement (MIRCI) is dedicated to advancing the understanding of motherhood through research, advocacy, and community engagement. By fostering collaboration among researchers, activists, and women, MIRCI empowers individuals to address the challenges and joys of motherhood. This initiative creates a platform for dialogue, supporting policies and practices that enhance the well-being of mothers.

Abuse of Women & #Me Too

"Together, we fight against abuse and harassment."

Together, we stand united in the fight against abuse and harassment, advocating for the rights and dignity of every woman. The #MeToo movement has ignited a global conversation, empowering survivors to share their stories and demand change. Our conference aims to raise awareness, provide support, and foster solidarity in tackling gender-based violence. We believe in creating a safe environment for all women, where their voices are heard and respected. Join us in this critical journey towards justice, healing, and empowerment.

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

Access to Justice & Legal Protection

"Access to justice is defined as the ability of people to seek and obtain a remedy through formal or informal institutions of justice for grievances in compliance with human rights standards."

In societies emerging from conflict, large segments of the population may not have had access justice. Equal access involves extending the reach of formal rule of law institutions to the population by removing barriers to their use. Strengthening access also involves engaging the informal sector to enhance its reach, effectiveness, and compliance with human rights standards.

Rural Women

"Achieving gender equality and empowering women is not only the right thing to do but is a critical ingredient in the fight against extreme poverty, hunger and climate change." Indigenous women have been at the forefront of environmental conservation by bringing invaluable ancestral knowledge and practices, and rural women have been leading global and national climate movements that have spotlighted the need for action for the sake of this and future generations.

Women & Social Justice: A Dilemma

"Millions of girls and women around the world face injustices, like being denied an education, forced into an early marriage, or made victims of gender-based violence. These injustices prevent girls and women from reaching their full potential" Women in the criminal justice system can act as agents of change. Diversity and inclusion enrich all institutions and contribute to greater accountability. Women judges bring different perspectives and experiences, strengthening judicial systems. Women in leadership roles help disrupt networks of collusion, striking a blow against corruption. Women's representation in law enforcement and judicial institutions has been linked to more effective, victim-centred responses to crime.

Women & Health

"The campaign for women's health and health-rights in India has been primarily geared towards the demand for better health services and facilities, protests against coercive tactics that endangers women's health and their human rights, and demand for overall well being of women." Right to life is considered one of the fundamental rights, and health is one of the vital indicators reflecting quality of human life. In this context, it becomes one of the primary responsibilities of the state to provide health care services to all its citizens. India

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

Women, Girls - HIV & AIDS

"Prevention and Testing at Every Age. Care and Treatment at Every Stage."

Every year, National Women and Girls HIV/AIDS Awareness Day (NWGHAAD) is observed on March 10. The HHS Office on Women's Health (OWH) leads this awareness day, partnering with the HIV community to spread the word about HIV prevention, care, and treatment for women and girls.

Cervical Cancer Awareness

"Together, we can strive to end cervical cancer within a few generations."

When diagnosed, cervical cancer is one of the most successfully treatable forms of cancer, as long as it is detected early and managed effectively. Cancers diagnosed in late stages can also be controlled with appropriate treatment and palliative care. With a comprehensive approach to prevent, screen and treat, we can end cervical cancer as a public health problem within a few generations.

Women & the Media

"The media can play a significant role in either perpetuating or challenging social norms and behaviours that condone violence against women."

UN Women supports media monitoring studies of how women are depicted in the media. We engage media professionals by raising awareness of gender equality and violence against women, including through special workshops and toolkits, to encourage gender-sensitive reporting. We support women's advocates to develop communications and media skills so that they can effectively engage with journalists and actively raise awareness of violence and even expose perpetrators.

Women Security & Safety

"There is still a problem concerning the harassment of women in India even after so many measures put in place across the years."

There is still a problem concerning the harassment of women in India even after so many measures put in place across the years. The ghastly acts of crime on women which has occurred recently like the gang rape and murder of a young doctor in Kolkata has reasserted the need for gender safety.

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

Women & Aging

"these women gracefully age, their self-esteem grows stronger, suggesting that a profound sense of self-acceptance can counteract the negative effects of societal beauty standards that often promote unrealistic ideals."

Many prominent women within the entertainment world are now choosing to embrace the natural signs of aging, including wrinkles and graying hair. By doing so, they challenge the established norms of their industry and provide powerful examples of how authentic beauty transcends the confines of age and appearance.

Infertility in Women

"There are many treatment options for infertility, including medications to correct hormonal issues, surgery and fertility treatments like in vitro fertilization (IVF)."

When you're having problems conceiving, it can turn an exciting time full of promise into a stressful time filled with doubt. Infertility is a challenge you face if you're younger than 35 and haven't been able to get pregnant after trying for one year, if you're older than 35 and haven't conceived after more than 6 months, if you've lost two or more pregnancies to miscarriage or you have tried other fertility treatments without results.

Women in the Infantry

"Women were kept out of infantry roles to make men more comfortable until today – that's shameful in itself"

"Women in the infantry embody courage, dedication, and unwavering commitment to the safety and integrity of our nation. Their service stands as a testament to the power of equality, breaking barriers, and protecting our country with resilience and honor."

Women & Athletics

"The ladies have been confronting segregation for quite a long time because of social and strict reasons since the Vedic occasions."

Breaking Barriers, Building Champions
Women in sports have consistently displayed exceptional skill, determination, and grace, transforming the field of athletics into a space of empowerment and achievement. From dominating international arenas to inspiring grassroots movements, female athletes have shattered stereotypes, proving that sports are not defined by gender but by talent and perseverance.

What we do

"Great Stories Can Change the World"

The Future of Feminism

"Proponents call it the Second Feminist Wave, the first having ebbed after the glorious victory of suffrage and disappeared, finally, into the sandbar of Togetherness."

The wave metaphor caught on: It became a useful way of linking the women's movement of the '60s and '70s to the women's movement of the suffragettes, and to suggest that the women's libbers weren't a bizarre historical aberration, as their detractors sneered, but a new chapter in a grand history of women fighting together for their rights. Over time, the wave metaphor became a way to describe and distinguish between different eras and generations of feminism.

Child Marriage and the discrimination of the girl child

"Child and forced marriage is a human rights violation and a harmful practice that disproportionately affects women and girls globally, preventing them from living their lives free from all forms of violence."

Worldwide, more than 650 million women alive today were married as children. Every year, at least 12 million girls are married before they reach the age of 18. This is 28 girls every minute. One in every five girls is married, or in union, before reaching age 18. In the least developed countries, that number doubles: 40 per cent of girls are married before age 18, and 12 per cent of girls are married before age 15. The practice is particularly widespread in conflict-affected countries and humanitarian settings

Women in Science & Technology for Development

"Too many of the breakthrough contributions of women in science, technology, engineering, and math fields continue to go untold, too often fading into obscurity. Let's write them back into history."

Women were central in the early teams building the foundation of modern programming. They unveiled the structure of DNA. Their work inspired new environmental movements and led to the discovery of new genes. It's past time to write their stories permanently into history, so they can stand side by side with the extraordinary men like them who have used their technical and innovation skills to bring needed solutions and discoveries to our world.

Culture & Women's Progress

"Women get empowered when they challenge established norms and culture of the society they live in. Thus, it is important to understand the role of culture in women's empowerment"

Modern women are those who are actively engaged in opposing social norms and constraints on women. They have a great desire for social liberty. However, there are a significant number of women who have little desire for social freedom and are content with pursuing a traditional way of life. Individual disparities in the desire for social freedom in women exist. This can be attributed to the hold of culture in our lives and the mental conditioning of women from an early age.

Women's March...

The First World Conference on Women commenced in Mexico City, 1975, Second World Conference on Women, Copenhagen, 1980, Third World Conference On Women, Nairobi, 1985 and Fourth World Congress on Women, Beijing, 1995 are called upon to take strategic objectives and action in the following critical areas of Concern.

- The persistent and increasing burden of poverty on women
- Inequalities and inadequacies in and unequal access to education and training
- Inequalities and inadequacies in and unequal access to health care and related services
- Violence against women
- Lack of respect for and inadequate promotion and protection of the human rights of women
- Persistent discrimination against and violation of the rights of the girl child.
